10:45 am — Secularization: Divorce Between Christianity and Religion?

Cyril O’Regan is Professor and Catherine F. Huisking Chair in Theology at the University of Notre Dame. O’Regan specializes in systematic and historical theology. He has specific interests in the intersection of continental philosophy and theology, religion and literature, mystical theology, and postmodern thought. He has written The Heterodox Hegel, Gnostic Return in Modernity, Gnostic Apocalypse: Jacob Boehme’s Haunted Narrative, Theology and the Spaces of Apocalyptic. Last year saw the publication of the first volume of his two volume work on the Catholic Swiss theologian, Hans Urs von Balthasar, Anatomy of Misremembering: Hans Urs von Balthasar’s Engagement with Philosophical Modernity. Vol. 1: Hegel. He is currently revising volume 2, which engages Balthasar and Heidegger, and is also making headway on the next two volumes of the Gnostic Return series, books on the Gnostic inflection of German Idealism and Romanticism. Besides writing widely on Balthasar, Hegel, and Heidegger, O’Regan has engaged such theological topics as the nature of tradition, the Trinity, postmodern theology, negative theology, and major religious figures such as Augustine, Meister Eckhart, Kant, Newman, de Luabac, Kasper, Marion, Derrida, and Žižek.
