

What is the NDIAS Undergraduate Research Fellowship Program?

The URF Program provides research training for up to 10 Notre Dame undergraduates. URFs serve as research assistants for NDIAS Faculty and Ph.D. Fellows (as the need arises), develop their research and communication skills, and expand their scholarly and professional networks.

Who Is Eligible?

- The program is open to all currently enrolled Notre Dame undergraduates.
- As this may be a paid position, we recommend that applicants be eligible to receive work-study.

How Do I Apply?

- Simply fill out the application form at ndias.nd.edu/undergraduates.
- Applications due by Friday, May 15, 2020.

For more information and to apply, visit:
ndias.nd.edu/undergraduates

Questions? Contact Paul Blaschko at pblaschk@nd.edu

Why apply for an Undergraduate Research Fellowship?

RESEARCH SKILL DEVELOPMENT

- Weekly research seminars led by NDIAS staff and faculty
- Research assistantships with NDIAS faculty and Ph.D. fellows
- Co-working space at the NDIAS

ENHANCED COMMUNICATION SKILLS

- Interdisciplinary communications skill-building and writing workshops
- Opportunity to present your own research

NETWORKING OPPORTUNITIES

- Close interaction with a wide variety of ND faculty, staff, and NDIAS fellows
- Access to all NDIAS events, including seminars, guest lectures, and more
- Application preparation support for job market and graduate school

These Fellowships are typically paid work-study positions (10 hours per week), an arrangement we hope to continue during 2020-2021, pending budgetary approval.

